The K-87 was ferried to NAS Moffett Field for major overhaul.

3 December

The K-71, temporarily based at NAAS Shelton, conducted *radar calibration tests for USS HART in the vicinity of Puget Sound Navy Yard.

29 December

While on a routine patrol, the K-103 was ordered to locate the SS DOLLY MADISON for the purpose of relaying a message from that ship. The ship requested the K-103 to forward a message that, because of a sick seaman aboard and for the purpose of securing her deck cargo, she intended to make port at Astoria rather than her original destination.

A request was received from NAAS North Bend to test the Racon at Cape Arago. The K-71 was instructed to conduct the test and found the Racon to be not functioning. A report of this condition was made to NAAS North Bend.

30 December

Lieutenant Commander Frederick N. Klein, Jr., USNR, read his orders and relieved Lieutenant Commander William R. Peeler, USN, as commanding officer of Airship Squadron 33. Lieutenant Commander Klein's last previous tour of duty was as Officer-in-Charge, Fleet Airships Pacific Tactical Unit.

31 December

The K-87 arrived from NAS Moffett Field to resume operations with this squadron after major overhaul.

Training in this command was continued as outlined in the war diary submitted for the month of November 1944.

Due to weather, there was one non-operational day during the month.
